For Release:

After Tuesday,
October 4, 1960

Photography - Criticism and Discussion, a course at the People's Art Center of the Museum of Modern Art, will be held on five Monday evenings from 7:30 - 9:30 beginning October 10. The sessions will continue October 31, November 21, December 12 and January 23. Ann Zane Shanks is instructor for the course, which is planned for beginners, advanced students, and photographers who are searching for an individual point of view in breaking away from photographic cliches. Technique will be discussed in relation to creative expression, rather than as an end in itself. A basic familiarity with the camera as a working tool is advisable.

Students will bring several photographs to each session for criticism by the instructor and the group. Guest professional photographers will attend some sessions to discuss their own and the students' work.

The fee for the five sessions is $20.

Students may register at the People's Art Center, 21 West 53 Street, second floor. For information, phone the Museum of Modern Art at CI 5-8900, ext. 337.
