SPRING CLASSES BEGIN FEBRUARY 3RD AT THE ART CENTER OF THE MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

Registration for spring art classes for adults at the Art Center of The Museum of Modern Art, 4 West 54th Street, begins on February 3. Classes meet once a week for a 15-week session and are limited in size.

Openings are still available in evening classes for beginners in painting, drawing and print making and advanced classes in painting - oil and other media. Day classes are available for beginners in orientation, drawing and gallery lecture tours.

Each of the beginner courses is an introduction to techniques in order to develop personal expression. Fees range between $70 and $85 per 15-week session.

The Art Center, under the direction of Victor D'Amico, is devoted to creative art education for children, young people and non-professionals. The school is equipped with equipment especially designed to meet the needs of both the child and the adult - the result of years of experimentation. Studios accommodate sculpture, ceramic, and metal work, as well as drawing, painting and collage.

The Art Center instructors are selected for their ability, preparation, and skill in meeting the needs of a particular age level or teaching a special craft.
