FEBRUARY EVENTS

Feb. 9 FREE MONDAY AT MOMA. In an effort to make its facilities more widely available, The Museum of Modern Art is taking the unprecedented step of instituting a free afternoon and evening once a week. The Trustees have announced that beginning February 9th -- for a six month trial period -- the Museum will be open free every Monday from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. Three film showings, at 2:30, 5:30 and 8 p.m., will be held and all galleries will be open including special loan exhibitions and selections from the Museum's collection of paintings, sculpture, architecture and design, photography and prints and drawings. The restaurants will open at 1:00 and light refreshments and dinner will also be served until 8 p.m. The Bookstore at 11 West 53rd Street will open at 2 p.m.; Bookstore 2 at 32 West 53rd Street will continue its present hours of 10:30 a.m. to 5:45 p.m. It is hoped that the institution of a free day will make it possible for many people -- students, artists, groups and individuals from community centers, and retired senior citizens -- to visit the Museum who would not otherwise be able to do so.

CURRENT TEMPORARY EXHIBITIONS

- Through Feb. 15 A SALUTE TO ALEXANDER CALDER. The third in the continuing series of major exhibitions drawn entirely from the Museum's collection surveying in depth the work of an artist or movement. The range of Calder's development is shown by some 30 sculptures and constructions in wire and wood, stabiles, mobiles free-moving and electrified, as well as drawings, prints, illustrated books and jewelry. Directed by Bernice Rose, Assistant Curator, Department of Painting and Sculpture. 1st floor. (opened Dec. 22)
- Through *Mar. 1 SPACES. Michael Asher, Larry Bell, Dan Flavin, Robert Morris and Franz Erhard Walther - working in a variety of media - have each had a space especially constructed in the Garden Wing, and Pulsa - a group of research artists affiliated with Yale University who are involved with electronic technology - have used the Garden for an outdoor project. The artists, selected by Jennifer Licht, Associate Curator of Painting and Sculpture, have created works employing actual space which encompass the viewer and his actions within their confines. 1st floor and Garden. (opened Dec. 30)
- Through Mar. 15 THE GRAPHIC CONSTRUCTIONS OF JOSEF ALBERS. This exhibition consists of two series of prints, Graphic Tectonic (1942) and Embossed Linear Constructions (1969), which both use elements arranged in an emphasized mechanical order. The 1969 series was made by an engineering programmer and hydraulic press fulfilling Albers' wish to "oppose a belief that handmade is better than machine or tool-made." Selected and installed by Riva Castleman. 1st floor.
- Through Mar. 22 ATGET. A sampling of 118 works by the French photographer (1856-1927) selected from the collection of several thousand prints and over one thousand plates acquired by the Museum last year from Berenice Abbott and Julian Levy with the aid of a gift from Shirley C. Burden. The selection represents the rich variety of subjects covered by Atget in the Paris area. John Szarkowski, Director, Department of Photography, selected and installed the exhibition. 1st floor. (opened Dec. 1)
- Through Apr. 5 SHERMAN'S CAMPAIGN: PHOTOGRAPHS BY GEORGE N. BARNARD (1819-1902). An exhibition of original photographs selected from Photographic Views of Sherman's Campaign (N.Y. ca. 1866). This rare volume is composed of 61 contact prints made from large glass negatives taken by Barnard himself in the field as official photographer of the Chief Engineer's Office, Division of the Mississippi, accompanying General William T. Sherman on his campaigns during the final years of the Civil War. Presumably the photographs were taken during 1864-65 and illustrate "scenes of the occupation of Nashville, the Great Battles around Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain, the Campaign of Atlanta, March to the Sea, and the Great Raid through the Carolinas." The exhibition has been selected and installed by John Szarkowski, Director, Department of Photography. Steichen Galleries, 3rd floor. (opened Jan. 26)
