PUBLIC INFORMATION DIRECTOR NAMED AT THE MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

Richard E. Oldenburg, director of the Museum of Modern Art, New York, has announced the appointment of Jeanne Collins as director of public information effective immediately. Ms. Collins succeeds Luisa Kreisberg who resigned to form her own public relations agency.

For the last three years, Ms. Collins has been director of public relations for the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art. Prior to that position, she worked as publicist and writer/editor for the University Art Museum at the University of California, Berkeley, and as a consultant in public relations and publicity.

A native Californian, she earned her BA in art and English from San Jose State University, and her MA in education from the University of Santa Clara. She completed additional postgraduate study in journalism and the fine arts through the University of California.

She has served as a consultant to the Art Museum Association of America through its Visiting Specialists Program, and as chairperson of the Northern California Executive Committee of ArtTable, Inc. A frequent guest lecturer for professional and community groups, she has taught numerous courses through the University of California Extension Program.
