SUMMERGARDEN 1990

WHEN July 6 - September 1, 1990
Friday and Saturday evenings, 6-10 p.m.
Concerts, 7:30 p.m.

WHERE The Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Sculpture Garden
Entrance on 14 West 54 Street

WHAT SUMMERGARDEN 1990 features free evenings in the Sculpture Garden with concerts performed by artists from The Juilliard School. The 1990 concert series is devoted exclusively to the music of Igor Stravinsky (1882-1971), with almost half of his oeuvre being performed.

SUMMERGARDEN has been a tradition since 1971. New Yorkers and visitors are invited to stroll among modern masterpieces by such artists as Henri Matisse, Henry Moore, Claes Oldenburg, Pablo Picasso, Auguste Rodin, and William Tucker; sit under the groves of birch, linden, and beech trees; or relax beside the Garden's two ornamental pools. Before and after the concerts, visitors may enjoy refreshments and drinks at the Summer Café.

The 1990 program marks the fourth year The Museum of Modern Art has collaborated with The Juilliard School on the concert portion of the SUMMERGARDEN evenings.
