"Animal Tales" is the theme of the Museum's first Spring Family Festival, featuring family-oriented activities especially designed for children ages five to ten. The morning includes storytelling in the Museum's Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Sculpture Garden, gallery games, films, and refreshments. The Spring Family Festival is made possible in part by a grant from The Gap Foundation.

Admission, which includes refreshments and children's art project, is $5 adults, $4 children, and free for members and their families.

PICNIC AT PEPSICO SCULPTURE GARDENS

Sunday, June 7, 1992

10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Enjoy the first Sunday in June at The PepsiCo Sculpture Gardens in Purchase, New York. The renowned collection of twentieth-century sculpture is located on 144 acres of formal gardens and landscaped vistas. Museum lecturers lead discussions on works by Calder, Giacometti, Miró, Nevelson, Rodin, and Smith. A picnic lunch follows.
