POST-WAR PLANNING LECTURE AT MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

In cooperation with Housing Week, the Museum of Modern Art will hold at eight-thirty Wednesday evening, May 24, the first of a series of four lectures on the problems of post-war planning: Planning for New York City, a forum discussion with speakers representing different points of view.

Chairman of the discussion will be George Howe, noted modern architect of New York and Philadelphia and Supervising Architect, Public Buildings Administration for the United States Government. Speakers are Mrs. Mary K. Simkhovitch, Vice-Chairman of the New York City Housing Authority; Clarence Stein, architect and one of the foremost planning experts in the United States; Joseph Hudnut, Dean of the Graduate School of Design, Harvard University; Siegfried Giedion, author of Space, Time and Architecture and Secretary of the International Congress for New Building (C.I.A.M.); Charles Abrams, author of Revolution in Land; and Cleveland Rodgers, member of the City Planning Commission.

The other three lectures in the series will be: May 31, The City, Region and Nation; June 7, City Planning and Government; June 14, City Planning and the New Architecture.

Admission prices: Series ticket for all four lectures, $2.00 to the public; $1.00 to members of the Museum of Modern Art; single admission to the public $.60; to members $.30. Series ticket may be obtained by mail from the Museum; individual tickets will be on sale the evenings of the lectures.

NOTE: Press card will admit any newspaper man or woman and his or her friends.
